

ETHNOMEDICA

Researching the herbal traditions of Britain

Do you remember using plant remedies in your childhood? Your help is sought in recording information about the medicinal use of our local plants in the recent past. The collectors in this project are herbalists and botanists who appreciate the value of this knowledge. All the information gathered in this project will be recorded and published on the internet, so that it is available for posterity.

I am happy for information I give to the project to be published

I wish/do not wish my name to be given alongside the information
