In celebration

Kew Gardens and Wakehurst offer wonderful and unique ways to celebrate a special occasion or remember your loved ones

A wooden boardwalk with a curved metal railing in a lush garden. The railing is made of vertical metal slats and follows the curve of the path. The path is made of wooden planks and leads through a dense forest of green trees. In the background, a few people can be seen walking on a path. The overall scene is peaceful and scenic.

Celebrate or remember someone special

Is there a place in the gardens that holds memories of happy times shared with loved ones? Or perhaps you want to find a fitting way to celebrate a birthday, wedding, anniversary or other special occasion.

Choosing a meaningful way to remember a loved one can be difficult, but we can help you find the perfect way to celebrate their life – on your own or with family, friends or colleagues.

By making a commemorative gift, you will help to maintain these very special gardens as well as support our vital science and conservation work.

All life depends on plants and fungi

The Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew has the largest and most diverse living and preserved collections of plants and fungi utilised by our team of 300 scientists alongside partners across the globe, placing Kew at the forefront of plant and fungi conservation and science.

From banking seeds at the Millennium Seed Bank, to resurrecting the world's smallest water lily (Nymphaea thermarum), your support joins Kew's expertise to address the critical challenges facing the world today. To find out more visit kew.org
